Last week in Paris, Galerie Maria Wettergren opened Modernism Crystallized (Family Affair), a group exhibition of new work by Danish designers Boris Berlin and Daniel Berlin and Latvian designer Germans Ermičs. Made from materials commonly associated with last century's modernists—glass, mirror, stone, wood—the designs in this show create stunning visual effects through interactions with ambient light, color, space, and movement. Modernism Crystallized is on view in the gallery through September.

“This little family of designers seems to explore simultaneously the modernist vocabulary and its potential collapse with, as leitmotif, order and dissolution; geometric regularity and deformation; clarity and illusion; presence and disappearance.” —Maria Wettergren
